Whether the China Merchants' Steamship Company is subsidized by the Chinese government or not is not positively known; but assuming that it is not the competition of this race in the business of transportation is likely to be as deadly as in other branches of industry. China is a nation in which everything is cheap, including human beings, and this cheapness gives them a certain advantage over Americans. Their ships may cost as much as ours, but their running expenses will be less, as their labor is lower and the cost of living less. Other things being even, cheap labor will give them the advantage in the strug
